Louisville Joins AARP/WHO Network as 4th Age-Friendly City in Kentucky!

We are excited to announce that the City of Louisville was welcomed into the AARP Network of Age-Friendly Communities! We are the 120th community to join the national network and the fourth in Kentucky with Berea, Bowling Green and Lexington already affiliated.

Affiliated with the World Health Organization's (WHO) Global Network of Age-Friendly Cities and Communities®, the AARP Network of Livable Cities and Communities helps participating communities become great places for people of all ages by adopting features such as safe, walkable streets; better housing and transportation options; access to key services; and opportunities for residents to participate in civic and community activities.

This recognition is the result of many dedicated and passionate individuals who believe in making Louisville a place where all people, regardless of age or ability, are able to flourish. The Age-Friendly City distinction is an incredibly exciting opportunity for our community to become more supportive not only of our older residents but also for residents of all ages."

In the first year of planning, community members should look forward to multiple upcoming chances to share their visions for our city by participating in surveys, listening sessions, and idea posts in their neighborhoods.
